The lung cancer team, which consists of your specialist doctors and Macmillan Lung Nurse Specialist, would like to offer you a support service following treatment.

We aim to provide a service that enhances your care and is responsive to your needs.

Your.....treatment is now completed.

You will now be monitored by your Respiratory Clinician

.....at the respiratory clinic at intervals decided by yourself and the consultant.

You may wish to ask a Macmillan Lung Nurse Specialist to be present at outpatient appointments or to call you following an appointment with the Respiratory Consultant, via the telephone, to answer any questions/queries about the consultation and issues proving to be troublesome to you.

Your specialist doctors and your Macmillan Lung Nurse Specialist work closely together, which means if you need any help they can liaise with your GP or other people involved in your care, for example District Nurses and Community Macmillan nurses as appropriate.

Why are we offering you this service?

- To reduce any anxieties/issues/problems that you may have following an out-patient appointment.
- Provide additional choice of support to you and your family.
- Holistic follow-up is an important component of post-treatment cancer care, it is physical, social and psychological rehabilitation.

If you would like to speak to your Lung nurse please call 01205 446294 and leave the request.

If the nurse does not hear from you she will assume that you do not need any additional support at present.
